Friday 19th November 2021

Firstly congratulations to Puffins on winning 200 Pritt Sticks for the school by participating in the Barvember daily Maths challenges. Well done and keep it up!

We had a good response to the Poppy Appeal, as we always do. We will let you know how much we raised when they inform us. Thank you.

Have a look at our super Children in Need outfits on page 2, we had a smashing time and raised some money too!

Your last chance to order books from Scholastic, which raises money for school, is 29th November. Thanks in anticipation of your support with this.

Children are working extra hard at the moment and have begun rehearsals for the Christmas Production on top of all their other learning. It's looking great!

Michael Rosen

This week, we took part in a special author event with the one and only Michael Rosen. After watching some of his silly poems and reading extracts of some of his books, we joined an online event to hear Michael talking about his latest book, experiences of Covid and what it's like being an author. Our favourite poems were Chocolate Cake and the one about the boy with bananas in his ears.

BANANAS IN MY EARS

A Little Boy Came Down to Breakfast

A little boy came down to breakfast with bananas stuck in his ears.

Everyone said hello to him
but he didn't take any notice.
So his mum said, "Are you all right?"
but the little boy said nothing.
So his sister said, "Are you all right?"
but the little boy still said nothing.

Then his brother noticed that he had bananas stuck in his ears, so he said, "Hey, you've got bananas stuck in your ears," and the little boy said, "What?" So his brother said it again.
"You've got bananas stuck in your ears," and the little boy said, "What?" So the brother shouted really loudly at him, "YOU'VE GOT BANANAS STUCK IN YOUR EARS!" And the little boy shouted back, "I'M SORRY, I CAN'T HEAR
YOU. I'VE GOT BANANAS IN MY EARS!"
